Conservative Members of Congress Even Recommend Move

MEET THURSDAY

Definite Action Expected As Solons Meet

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The projected policy of using scrip on a national scale in the banking emergency was dropped today, and it appeared instead that the federal government would authorize expansion of currency under existing statutory authority.

The decision against issuing on a national scale was announced by secretary of the treasury Woodin, at a time when many clearing house associations were prepared to embark upon that system of a circulating medium.

WASHINGTON, March 8. — President Roosevelt will ask Congress to grant him broad power to deal with the fast-shifting banking and financial situation.

In the special message which he will send to the extraordinary session of the new 73rd Congress tomorrow, the President intends to point out that the situation is changing so fast in various sections of the country that only a board authority in the executive can meet it.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—An overwhelming sentiment swept the new Congress today for a partial federal guarantee of deposits in national banks as an emergency relief measure.

If President Roosevelt recommends this drastic step to the Congress, meeting tomorrow in special session, it undoubtedly will be enacted. This was evidenced when such conservatives as Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate finance committee, and Senator Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, ranking minority member, recommended it.

There was some talk of guaranteeing deposits in state banks but many leaders objected to this procedure solely on the ground such a move might undermine federal credit. One proposed plan for aiding state banks would let them enter the federal reserve system temporarily in order to facilitate their liquidation.

OLD DEPOSITS ALSO

The plan apparently winning the most favor provides for a federal guarantee of all new deposits in national banks plus a guarantee of all old deposits, up to 50 per cent, if backed by liquid assets.

The government then would prescribe the strictest regulation of banks ever undertaken. The regulation would extend even to the limiting of investments of new deposits solely to federal bonds.

There were many variations of this plan. Senator Fletcher (D) of Florida, chairman of the Senate banking and currency committee, suggested a federal guarantee only of new deposits. Reed insisted the guarantee should be optional, so that a bank with from 75 to 100 per cent liquid assets, might continue the old system. Others argued the guarantee should only apply to banks having at least 50 per cent liquid assets.

HELP CONFIDENCE

In any event, the plan would make available a considerable portion of the $19,000,000,000 deposited in national banks. It also would revive confidence in banks and give business men the assurance of meeting future payrolls.

The celerity with which conservatives approved the plan was indicative of the support to be given Mr. Roosevelt.

SITUATION IS SAME

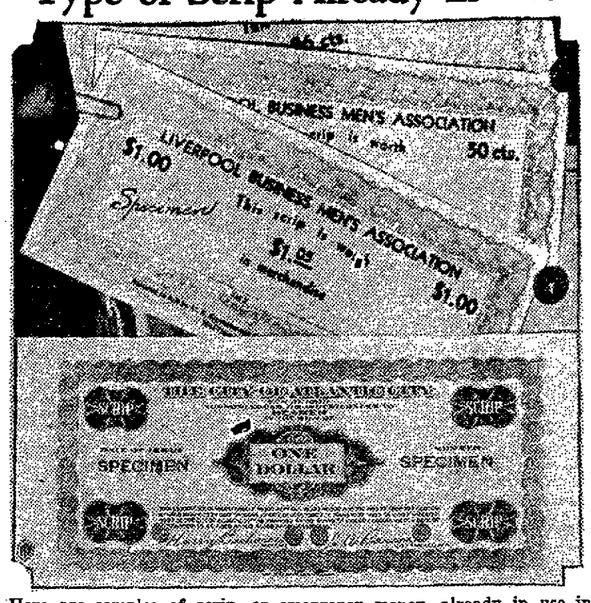

Circleville banks were operating Wednesday in the same manner as Tuesday, opened under restrictions.

Four purposes, paying checks on new accounts, receiving new deposits under recently enacted legislation, making change for currency, and permitting owners of safe deposit boxes to have access to their boxes, were still in effect.

OHIO GLASS FIRM BEGINS OPERATION

TIFFIN, March 8.—Closed since the declaration of the bank holiday, the local plant of the U. S. Glass Co., was scheduled to reopen today following announcement of the Tiffin chamber of commerce that it would issue script.

Type of Scrip Already in Use

Here are samples of scrip, or emergency money, already in use in Atlanic City, N. J., and Liverpool, N. Y. Following the proclamation of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, declaring an embargo on gold and a nation-wide bank holiday, similar scrip will be issued throughout the nation. It will be in denominations from $5 to $50 for a start with the possibility of certificates for $1 being issued later. The President's action was taken in line with his inaugural promise to assume war-time emergency powers, and constitutes a technical (pro tem) abandonment of the gold standard.

What Is State Scrip?

COLUMBUS, March 8.—Here are the facts about the system of state scrip which was authorized last night and early today by the state legislature:

Q—How, where and by whom is state scrip to be obtained?

A—Prior to general circulation, state scrip is obtainable only from the state treasury by persons having claims against the state in the form of salary vouchers, workmen's compensation and teachers' retirement claims, and money due on contracts.

Q—Who will accept scrip?

A—As the scrip is supported by millions of dollars in state resources, state officials believe it will be accepted by all merchants and business men in Ohio.

Q—What will it buy?

A—State officials declare it will be accepted for all purchases.

Q—In what sizes will it be issued?

A—In denominations of $1, $5, $10 and $20.

Q—When will it be ready for distribution?

A—Due to the difficulties of engraving, a week or 10 days may be required for the first printing.

Q—Will scrip be accepted on state and local tax payments?

A—Yes.

Q—How are merchants to know they are not being offered counterfeit scrip?

A—A distinctive engraving process will be used to make the scrip difficult to copy.

Q—Will forgers be punished?

A—They will be subject to imprisonment from three to 20 years as a part of the scrip bill.

Q—What will scrip do for the state?

A—It will give a definite medium of exchange to thousands of Ohioans in sums which may amount to millions of dollars.

Q—Can scrip be interchanged with the proposed clearing house scrip?

A—This has not been decided, but state officials believe it would be readily accepted, due to the tremendous resources behind the state scrip.

Q—What disposition will be made of the scrip after it passes from use?

A—After redemption by the state, the scrip will be impounded and destroyed.

2 SOUGHT IN KIDNAP PROBE

Men Believed Fleeing Toward Canada; Accomplices Are Jailed.

DENVER, March 8.—An international manhunt was under way today for the asserted "brains" of a well organized kidnaping gang as officers in Wyoming, the Dakotas and Canada combed mountain and plain for Verne Sankey, 41, and Gordon Elkhorn, 33, who are believed to be carrying the $60,000 abduction ransom paid for the release of Charles Boettcher II, wealthy Denver broker.

Sankey and Elkhorn, alias Gordon Best, escaped from the kidnapers' lair in an isolated ranch house in the South Dakota hills near Chamberlan just before officers swooped down on the place early yesterday and captured Arthur Youngberg, 37, third member of the gang who later made a vain attempt to take his own life.

Carl W. Pearce, 36, and Mrs. Verne Sankey, 38, and Mrs. Ruth Kohler, 39, sister of Mrs. Sankey, are held in the city jail here.

Charges of kidnaping have been

Holmes Now 92

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Oliver Wendell Holmes, famous associate justice of the Supreme court for nearly 30 years, today quietly observed his 92nd birthday at his capital home.

The aged justice, who lives in an old red brick house with a secretary and servants, was reported in good health.

Felicitations on his birth anniversary came from far and wide. Among his callers was his old friend Justice Louis D. Brandeis. Holmes resigned from the high court Jan. 12, 1932.

250 Residents Of Island Faced By "Black Death"

WATERTOWN, N. Y., March 8.—Three children have died of the "black death" which is terrorizing some 250 residents of Grindstone Island in the St. Lawrence river. The third child, Elizabeth Dano, 11, died of diphtheria yesterday despite the efforts of Dr. J. T. Fowkes of Clayton to save her.

The island, located miles from shore and amid dangerous ice-floes, is difficult to reach.

The disease broke out about two weeks ago and there are about 20 cases. Anne Carnegi, 3, died Monday of the disease and Raymond Garnseyo, 8, died Tuesday.

No boats can be run to the disease area because of the ice and trips are made by the physician and his party afoot over the hazardous softening ice, dragging a flat-bottom boat with them.

Legislature Approves Emergency Plans for Scrip, Insurance

FOLLOW MESSAGE

Insurance Superintendent is Granted Power

COLUMBUS, March 8.— Three new emergency acts, providing for the issuance of state scrip and the safeguarding of the interests of insurance policy holders, were passed by the state legislature last night and early today.

The three new measures, which were enacted upon the recommendations embodied in special messages sent by Governor George White to the legislature, are:

1. The Lawrence act, providing for the issuance of certificates of deposit by the state.

2. The Lewis act, conferring emergency powers upon the state superintendent of insurance.

3. The Bower act, providing a new method for liquidating delinquent insurance corporations.

ONLY 5 NEGATIVE

Rushed to the assembly last night as new measures of relief during the banking crisis, the bills were passed almost without opposition. A total of five negative votes were cast against the three measures. They were to be signed by the governor at once, becoming effective immediateiy.

Through enactment of the Lawrence bill, the state of Ohio will meet its payrolls and pay its other obligations by use of state scrip.

The Lewis act grants to the state superintendent of insurance almost the same dictatorial powers that were given to the state superintendent of banks last week.

For the protection of insurance companies and insurance policyholders during the banking crisis the superintendent of insurance may impose any condition he may choose upon the life insurance companies of the state.

The only check placed upon his authority is the approval of the state commerce director, which the insurance superintendent must have for all executive acts.

By power granted under the Bower act, insurance companies may move voluntarily to have the insurance superintendent take over and administer their affairs.

GIVES JUDGES POWER

County common pleas courts, instead of the state supreme court or appellate courts, would be empowered to order liquidation of insurance companies.

The new state scrip, to be issued in certificate form, will circulate as currency and is expected to be accepted generally by merchants. Under the law it must be accepted for taxes.

Approximately $50,000 a day is expected to be paid out in scrip for workmen's compensation and teachers' retirement claims. This alone will throw thousands of dollars in new credit into the field of business activity within a short

"Gilt-Edged" Collateral Needed for Loans

COLUMBUS, March 8.—Millions of dollars in Ohio restricted bank accounts became legally available for payroll purposes, food, and "the necessities of life" today at the order of State Banking Superintendent Ira J. Fulton.

Following issuance of a ruling by Secretary of the Treasury William Woodin that old deposits may be partially released for payrolls and necessities, Fulton ruled that Ohio banks may make use of the federal order.

Withdrawals, however, must be limited to the percentage set down under state restrictions which were placed into effect following the enactment of emergency legislation last February 27 by the state legislature.

STATEMENT FOLLOWS

Fulton's announcement, authorizing banks throughout the state to take advantage of the federal ruling, follows:

"Under restriction order heretofore issued pro rata payments in part on liabilities to extent of percentage ordered may be paid to those entitled if necessary to meet the needs of the community for food, necessities of life, relief of distress and for other purposes mentioned in the regulation of the secretary of the treasury. Precaution must be taken to prevent hoarding and unnecessary withdrawals. No gold or gold certificates are to be paid out. Bank directors and officers will be held for compliance with the spirit of purpose and letter of regulation."

Banks which have not restricted withdrawals may release payrolls and other emergency funds as usual, Fulton said.

PROVIDES LOANS

Fulton's ruling also gave Ohio banks authority to make loans for payrolls and the necessities of life, providing "gilt edged" collateral is furnished by firms requesting the loans.

LABOR FAVORS THREE POINTS

Green Relates Program Sponsored By Labor For Recovery.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Declaring the situation "calls for direct, immediate action," William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today outlined a three-point program sponsored by organized labor for leading the country out of the economic depression.

This program, he said, calls for:

1. Restoration of the buying power of the country through establishment and maintenance of high wage standards.

2. Establishment of the five-day week and six-hour work day.

3. Creation of credit facilities to enable both large and small employers to finance production.

After declaring the present crisis had been brought about directly by the crumbling purchasing power of the people, as a result of wage slashes and widespread unemployment, Green speaking at a luncheon of the New York Board of Trade, said:

"Suggestions for inflation of currency, for revaluation of our monetary standards and for the

Otterbein Brotherhood to Observe Twenty-Fifth Birthday Thursday

Three of Same Committee That Served at First Meeting and Three of First Four Officers To Be Present; Good Program Being Arranged.

Twenty-five years of success as a brotherhood will be celebrated Thursday evening at the United Brethren church community house when the Otterbein Brotherhood observes its twenty-fifth birthday anniversary.

It was in March, 1908, that the brotherhood was organized and it has continued since that time as an important factor in the success of the church.

The program will begin at 7:30 p. m. when a luncheon will be served after which speakers, as yet unannounced, will be heard.

Peculiarly three of the men who were on the committee in charge of the first meeting of the brotherhood are on the committee for the anniversary program. They are E. S. Neuding, John Goff and S. C. Grant. Three of the officers who were named to office at that first meeting will also be present. They include George W. Hartman, president; Ralph Long, vice president, and S. C. Grant, secretary. Joe Sells, treasurer of the organization at its first meeting is living in the northern part of the state and will be unable to attend the meeting.

James Trimmer is the present president of the organization.

Death Summons Ashville Woman

Mrs. David H. Ebert, 61, Succumbs After Long Illness Tuesday.

FUNERAL IS FRIDAY

Leaves Five Daughters, Son, All Married.

Mrs. May Ebert, aged 61, wife of David H. Ebert, well known Ashville grocer, died at her home Tuesday at 8 p. m. A long illness caused death, dropsy being the immediate cause.

Funeral services will be Friday at 2 p. m. at the residence with Rev. H. H. Glick of the Ashville Lutheran church officiating. Interment will be in Reber Hill cemetery by E. F. Schlegel.

Mrs. Ebert was a lifelong resident of this county being born in Harrison-twp May 8, 1871 a daughter of Daniel and Eliza Jane Whitehead.

She is survived by her father, her husband, six children, Mrs. David Dunnick, Mrs. Roger Hedges and Mrs. O. J. Ward of Ashville, Mrs. J. C. Borror of Scioto-twp, Mrs. C. A. SOME COUNTY SCHOOLS MAY NOT RE-OPEN

—BUCHANAN SAYS

Action of Legislature in Providing More State Funds Imperative

LOANS OBTAINED

Representative is for Three-Month Moratorium

Possibility that several Pickaway-co school districts will not be opened next fall and that many of the richer districts will be open for only three or four months, D. L. Buchanan, superintendent of county schools, declared Wednesday that action in the state legislature is imperative.

"Unless something constructive is done by the legislature in providing more state funds than have been available in the past, the situation will be unprecedented," Buchanan said.

His statement came after he, with Scioto-twp school officials, were successful in obtaining a loan of $3,000 from the State Teachers' Retirement system, Tuesday, in order to pay back salaries of teachers, janitor and bus drivers of the Scioto-twp schools.

PAID IN NOVEMBER

They have not been paid since the first two weeks in November, the superintendent declard.

The loan was granted after being approved by the county budget commission, Auditor Cliff M. White, Prosecutor Ray D. Davis and Treasurer Earl Hoffman.

Whitney Lamb, president of the Scioto-twp board of education, H. M. Beavers, secretary, and J. E. Stage, school superintendent, attended the meeting in Columbus Tuesday when the money was granted when application was made to borrow fifty per cent of the estimated tax revenue of the last tax collection.

Last week Buchanan and members of the Muhlenberg-twp board were able to obtain a loan of $2,400 for the Muhlenberg school from the same source that the Scioto-twp loan came.

COLUMBUS, March 8.—Protest arose from many sources today against the three-month moratorium on education proposed by Rep. Clarence H. Burk (D), of Huron-co, who declared Ohio may have to close down all state-controlled colleges and state-aid schools.

SKINNER OPPOSES

Dr. B. C. Skinner, state director of education, asserted that a closing of schools would lead to further hysteria about economic conditions and would wreck the education system.

H. S. Atkinson, member of the board of trustees of Ohio State university, challenged Burk's statement that a shut-down is justified because the enrollment of Ohio State university will slump 50 per cent when the spring quarter opens March 20.

"There will doubtless be a decrease in enrollment but it ought be nothing near 50 per cent," said Atkinson.

BAR UTILITY COS. FROM SUSPENSION

Commission Prevents Penalties For Persons Now Under Handicap.

COLUMBUS, March 8.—An order prohibiting public utility concerns in Ohio from suspending service or imposing penalties upon patrons handicapped in the payment of bills because of the banking situation was issued today by the state utilities commission here.

The commission's order is temporary and will be in effect only until March 20, unless it is decided necessary in the meantime to extend the time limit.

The commission also issued an order permitting motor bus companies in the state to suspend operations of "not more than 50 per cent of regularly scheduled trips."

This order was issued at the request of Ohio Motor Bus Association officials who said that travel by bus in the state had fallen off approximately 50 per cent since the banking restrictions were put into effect.

WHITE'S MESSAGE

In a special message asking for authorization of state scrip, Governor White declared that "it is unthinkable that the government should fail in the face of prevailing conditions."

"The state of Ohio," he said, is among the wealthiest in the union, and the credit of the government is unexcelled. It enjoys the unique distinction of having practically no debt service. It has no accumulation of unpaid bills."

Emergency insurance legislation was necessary, the governor said, due to "abnormal demands for cash."

"The burden placed upon all forms of insurance companies doing business in this state has become abnormal and if continued may threaten the welfare of all the policyholders, beneficiaries and creditors of these great corporations."

The message added that insurance companies "have always been able to meet their obligations on demand and with the return of more normal conditions will be able to do so again."

Admittedly the insurance legislation was designed to curtail loans against policies and surrender of policies for cash.

Punitive steps against persons trying to make profit from dealing in scrip discounting were promised by Rep. Keith W Lawrence (D), of Cleveland, majority floor leader in the house, who said the state division of securities would employ its inspectors to give "ample protection" to the public.

The legislature went into "a committee of the whole" in both houses to give consideration to all measures before a vote was taken. The meetings were closed.

A fight to rush through another emergency finance measure—the Best bill permitting judges to use their discretion in holding up orders of sale in foreclosures—was lost in the closing minutes of the session by Republican house members.

Rep. Grant P Ward (R), of Columbus, was defeated in his attempt to have the bill placed on the house calendar for special order this afternoon.

FAMILIES HANG ON TO THEIR MOTORS

New York.—That the automobile industry has a firm basis for recovery is indicated in a report issued by James Dalton, editor of Motor. The experience of 1932 shows that there is still in operation one car for every six of our population. The figures show that the American people regard their cars as an essential part of their lives and cling to them as long as possible. The record of 1932 car registrations reported by Motor discloses that there are still 20,929,091 passenger cars in operation in the United States. Counting the 3,253,292 trucks that are in operation, the total is 24,182,383 vehicles. This represents a decrease of 1,631,720 car registrations, or 6.1 per cent, from 1931, but since 1932 marks the culmination of the business recession, the decline was less than might have been expected. The trucks registered in 1932 numbered 3,253,292, which is 6.1 per cent under 1931.

A drop of only 2,192,498 car licenses from the 1929 peak is an unexpectedly small shrinkage and provides substantial evidence of the importance of individual transportation.

The editor of Motor points out that the losses in passenger car registrations since 1929 reflect with fair accuracy the relative pitch of the depression in different states. Broadly speaking, the industrial East—New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island—and the west coast held up the best. The plight of the farmer is clearly revealed in the drop in car licenses in agricultural sections. The states that had the worst decline in the three years' span were the southern and western agricultural states.

Numerically, the heaviest losses were: Michigan, 220,000 cars; Texas, 165,000; Ohio, 133,000; Oklahoma, 129,000; Iowa, North Carolina, Illinois and Wisconsin more than 100,000 cars.

MAYOR CERMAK'S EMPTY CHAIR

Lights of NEW YORK By WALTER TRUMBULL

Before the recent Presidential election there were more corrugated brows on Broadway than there were movie patrons or auction sales of cut-glass diamond rings and brass watches. Yes, everybody's forehead looked as if the champion knot-tier of the navy had been working on it, and they tell me it was the same right through from the Atlantic to the Pacific. You might start to talk football or college humor with some citizen, and for a moment the worried look would leave his face. But then he'd go right back to saving the country.

I just wonder whether this broad land of ours knows how many times it was saved during the campaign. There was scarcely a citizen who was not willing to rescue the United States, and the North American continent in general, if it took his last vocal chord. Some of them put in a lot of valuable talking time rescuing South America and the European nations. Everybody was confident he had the only course which would bring the ship of state safely through the storm. He was, to be sure, also wearing his life preserver, just in case. There sure was a lot of worrying going on.

It probably still is going on, but it's different. Nobody is worrying about the country any more. Each voter figures that he has done his patriotic duty, and, if there is any further worrying to be done concerning our fair land, let Franklin Roosevelt do it. Isn't that what he was put in for? Sure it was. Just try to get some friend or acquaintance, some one who was doing the loudest worrying, to corrugate his brow over the country right now. He won't even listen to you. He is too busy worrying about whether his favorite player was overlooked on the All America, or whether his golf score will be lower in the spring.

If you were asked to name the most beautiful woman in New York, you would have a hard job. New York is full of beautiful women, and beauty, as they say, is in the eye of the beholder. Every moon-struck youngster would vote for his own girl. But if you were asked to name this city's handsomest women, it might be easier. The chances are, for example, that most of us would agree on Fannie Hurst as one of the ladies best worth of Manhattan. She is a Junoesque figure, attracting instant attention, no matter how softly she may enter any gathering.

A Manhattan business man, who had attended one of those late banquets, started home in his car. The streets at that hour were empty, and he did pretty well. He lives outside the city and his house has a driveway. He made the turn into that nobly, but when he had circled around to the back yard, all his efforts had made him very tired, so he stopped the car and went to sleep. Some time later he woke up feeling somewhat refreshed, but not knowing whether he had slept an instant or an hour. Nor did he know exactly where he was. This perhaps was because it had started to rain and the windows were so wet he could not see out of them. He started his engine and his windshield wiper.

In a moment it became evident that it was a good thing he hadn't slept any longer, for there, close ahead of him, in the glare of his headlights was another car. It seemed plain that he was in traffic. He waited patiently for the car ahead to move, but there it stayed. Finally he blew his horn. Still the car didn't move. Now he really was annoyed, so he put his finger on the horn button and held it there. He held it there for a full minute. Then he heard noises like windows going up and a sound of raised voices. He climbed out to see what was the matter. There were lights in his house and also in those of his near neighbors. The car ahead of him was his wife's coupe, which she apparently had left for him to put in the garage. He has found some difficulty explaining just how everything happened.

Frank Mason recently discovered something concerning a Japanese who works for him that he didn't know before. He wanted to wear a blue suit, but found there was a button off the coat. He asked the Japanese whether he knew how to sew on a button and could do it in a hurry. The man said he could. In a few moments he brought the coat back. The button was on all right enough, but it looked a bit startling. The Japanese had used red thread. Inquiry developed the fact that he was color blind.

DENVER— Being forced to sleep with friend wife's pet poodle does not constitute cruelty in the eyes of the Denver divorce courts. District Judge Henry A. Calvert granted Lionel Herold D. Moodie a divorce from Thelma A. Moodie on those grounds.

Widowed in Java

Mrs. Martha Ederton Fell, third wife of John R. Fell, Philadelphia society sportsman who was found dead in his hotel room at Solo, Java, with a knife in his heart. Mrs. Fell, a former Forbes girl, who was the only witness to her husband's death, told Javanese authorities that he committed suicide.

Look at These Designs From The Herald Wonder Package

If you like to do cross-stitch embroidery here is your opportunity to stitch to your heart's content. The illustration shows a group of designs which are reduced and cover only one-half of one of the 12 sheets contained in The Herald Wonder Package.

On some of the half pages we have shown there have appeared 18 or 20 designs. The reason for the fewer number appearing on this half page is due to the larger size of the motifs. For example: The little Dutch boy and girl dancing in the center actually measures eight inches high and 18 inches long. This particular design would be splendid for a tray, especially so if it could be put under glass and preserved carefully. A suggestion—the background of this could be ecru linen and the figures in bright blue.

Attractive Border

The wide border shown is two and one-half inches wide, the cross stitch coarse which would be very attractive in black and bright colors. The outer edge could be made in black, the zig-zag in red and the small squares in orange or yellow. A very appropriate border for a large luncheon cloth.

The rose spray at the bottom of the illustration could be cross stitched for another luncheon cloth with the hem put in with hand hem stitching (double).

The bow knot might be medium blue, the leaves green and the flowers in two shades of rose. The birds, animals and wind mill could be attractively framed for the children's room.

Chair Doilies

The Butterfly and Cherub designs are appropriate for doilies to be used on the arms and back of upholstered chairs. The edges may be hem-stitched and finished with picoted crochet in the same color as is used for the cross-stitch.

If you are familiary with cross-stitch work you will see numerous possibilties in these designs and those of you who are not experienced will want to try your hand at it for it is very simple to do and very fascinating.

Remember, The Herald Wonder Package contains 12 sheets, 24 by 36 inches, and each one just crowded with designs.

Over 800 Patterns

Do you know that there are over 800 patterns in The Herald Wonder Package and inasmuch as each can be transferred 10 and 12 times you are getting several thousand patterns. Don't forget these designs can be transferred to wood, china, glass, furniture pottery and paper.

Do you know the low price of this Wonder Package? If you desire to have it mailed it is $1.00 but if you would like to call for it the price is only 88c

The Circleville Herald.
Enclosed please find $1.00 for which I wish you would send me the ....Wonder Package of over 800 transfer patterns.

Useful Small Tables Popular For Many Living Room Uses

LIVING room tables have been growing smaller and more numerous in the last few years, because the living room itself has undergone important changes in decoration and use. In place of the one large center table or "davenport" table, the well furnished living room today includes two or more small tables placed beside chairs, for smoking accessories, and lamp; possibly a third table in front of the sofa for additional smoking accessories, books and the coffee tray, and in addition there may be two somewhat larger tables, one at each end of the sofa, to hold a lamp, a bowl of flowers and books.

These small tables have appeared because home decorating specialists pointed out that the old arrangement was not only too stiff and uninviting for family comfort, but it also was inhospitable. With the newer ideas in decoration the living room is comfortably furnished with deep, cushioned chairs, a three-cushion sofa (no longer called a davenport!), plenty of lamps so that every chair and the sofa as well, is amply lighted for reading, and small tables at hand to hold whatever the guest or any member of the family may want beside him as he reads or sits in conversation.

Many Varieties

The variety of such tables is almost endless and even when made of fine walnut and mahogany they are so reasonably priced that to add one or two to the living room hardly makes a dent in the furnishing budget. If the room is furnished with maple or pine, in the Early American style, there are excellent small tables in these woods, designed along the same simple lines. There are small drop-leaf tables in this style, others which look more like stools than tables, others which are small pedestal types with round, oval or square tops. Those selected for use at each end of the sofa should have their table top almost level with the arms of the sofa, and they should be broad enough to safely hold a lamp, as well as ash tray or book or other small objects.

The table in this style intended for a tea table, may be a round drop leaf with gate-legs, and it should be about the same height as the sofa tables; high enough so that the hostess may sit in a comfortable chair, and pour tea from the tray on this table. It should be large enough to hold a large tea tray, and provide room for additional plates and tea accessories.

The coffeetable on the other hand is low, oval or square more often than round, and it is usually placed in front of the sofa, or at one side of a large armchair. Through the day it holds smoking accessories or a bowl of fruit or flowers; while after dinner when coffee is to be served in the living room, it is temporarily cleared to make room for the little coffee tray.

End Tables for Chairs

When selecting an end table for use beside a chair, it should be chosen with regard for the size of the chair, and should be of such height that someone sitting in the chair does not have to reach up too far or down too low for the ash tray or book or bit of candy in the tempting dish. These end tables may be almost any shape the hostess finds pleasing, round, square, oval, oblong; and all of these are available in the Early American maple and pine.

For Lenten Menus On Meatless Days

Eggs, Vegetables and Sea Foods Combine to Make Nourishing Dishes.

MEATLESS days call for considerable thought and careful planning if the housekeeper is to keep her family well fed and satisfied. Fresh fish is not always available, especially in the smaller cities; and even when available, a steady diet of fish becomes monotonous.

Fish dinners in the Lenten period should be varied with menus which include hearty dishes made with vegetables and eggs and combinations of these with seafood of the canned variety, especially with shrimp, lobster and crabmeat, and the excellent canned cod.

One of the humble cereals, old fashioned hominy makes a much appreciated Lenten dish.

Hominy Puff

Use two cups of cooked, mashed hominy, two well beaten eggs, one tablespoon melted butter, one tablespoon baking powder, one half cup milk, one fourth teaspoon salt. Mix the baking powder with the flour and salt and then add to the other ingredients. Turn into a baking dish which has been rubbed with shortening and bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes. Occasionally to vary this, sprinkle with grated cheese before baking, and mix about one half cup of cheese with the hominy.

Eggs and Asparagus

Cut eight hard cooked eggs in half lengthwise. Drain a large can of asparagus and cut the asparagus in inch lengths. Rub a baking dish with shortening, put in half of the eggs with the yolk side up, and spread the asparagus over them. Set the remaining eggs on this with yolks down.

Make a sauce of one cup of the liquor from the canned asparagus, two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons of flour, one fourth teaspoon salt, one eighth teaspoon each of pepper and paprika, and add to this one half cup of hot cream. Pour the mixture over the eggs, spread with butter bread crumbs and bake fifteen minutes in a hot oven.

Scalloped Minced Clams

Use one large can clams, one half pound macaroni, one cup canned milk, two cups boiling water, salt, pepper; one large onion finely minced; one clove of garlic, finely minced; one half cup grated cheese, one half cup shortening, one half cup flour.

Cook the macaroni until tender, drain, and wash off in the sieve under the cold water faucet. Heat the shortening and fry in it the onions and garlic covering with a lid until tender, but not allowing to brown. Open the clams, drain off the juice and heat the juice with milk and boiling water. When the onion and garlic are tender, sift in the flour, stir and cook together then add to the boiling liquids stirring constantly as it thickens.

Add this to the clams, season put into a baking dish rubbed with shortening, sprinkle with grated cheese and bake until brow. This serves six.

Recipes From Mrs. Thurn

Good Dishes To Add To The March Menus and Later Ones.

Dear Friends in Circleville:

In looking through the recipe requests which you gave me during the week of the Cooking School, I find that many of you asked for dishes in which cornmeal is used. And one request in particular begged for old fashioned spoon bread. Here it is, with some of the others asked for, and a promise that more will appear on this page week after week. Just be patient, and meanwhile, try these!

SPOON BREAD

Strictly speaking the spoon bread is not a bread. It is soft, and must be eaten with a fork, taking the place however of any bread in the menu, or if bread is served, the spoon bread should have a sauce or gravy with it, and then it serves as one of the vegetables in the menu. Or if baked in small, individual casserole, it is eaten with a spoon. As a rule, butter is put on the spoon bread when eaten.

One cup yellow cornmeal, two cups boiling water, one tablespoon butter, two teaspoons salt, two eggs beaten, one cup milk, one tablespoon table molasses. Pour the water over the cornmeal, and cook together about five minutes, stirring to prevent scorching or sticking. Add the butter and salt and molasses and let cool to lukewarm. Add the milk and beaten eggs, beat two minutes, pour into a baking dish rubbed with shortening, and bake for twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven. It is served from the baking dish, at the table.

FRIED EGG PLANT

A good eggplant is deep purple, with a thin, shiny skin and is lightweight for its size. Old eggplant is bitter and the many seeds must be removed before cooking although the bitter flavor is liked by many.

Peel and cut the eggplant in two inch cubes and dry on a towel. Drop into boiling fat and cook until light brown, drain and remove to a hot serving dish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and a little ground clove. Serve with highly seasoned tomato sauce.

Or peel and cut the eggplant in thick slices and dry on a towel. Melt a little butter, three or four tablespoons in a frying pan, and put in the eggplant and cook slowly, browning on both sides, and adding more butter as needed. Remove, sprinkle with salt, and serve on a hot dish. It does not need to be breaded to hold its shape.

Fragrant Coffee Starts the Day

One of coffee's most popular uses is as a breakfast beverage. To be delicious it must be freshly made just before serving and preferably made at the table.

MUSHROOMS

One request was for a "good recipe for mushrooms." Such indefinite requests mean that the woman does not have a cook book, and without this kitchen essential, how can she expect to offer varied menus, and appetizing meals? Every housekeeper ought to have one good cookbook for regular use.

Fresh mushrooms lend themselves to various ways of cooking, the most popular of which is broiling. Select large mushrooms from the grocer's commercially raised assortment. (Never pick your own in the fields! Occasionally even the experts are fooled. They are only fooled once! Mushroom poisoning has no cure.)

Do not wash the mushrooms unless very earthly. Then rinse quickly under the cold water faucet. With a stainless steel knife, or silver knife, delicately peel the cap and stem, cutting the stem in small pieces, but leaving the caps

Starkeys Lose To Williams 5

By virtue of two forfeited game in the Pickaway Independent loop at Commercial Point Tuesday evening, by the Shop Rovers and New Holland Kirks three teams entered a deadlock for the leadership of the league in its closing games of the season.

Starkey Cleaners, Williams Grovers, and New Holland are deadlocked for the top position and will play off the tie at a later date to decide the championship.

Only one regularly scheduled game was played Tuesday night it being between the Commercial A. C. and the Walnut Tigers the cellar champs of the loop and ending in the Commercial quintet's favor by a score of 42-37.

STARKEY LOSE

Starkeys and Williams Grocers in filling out the card for the night's program agreed to play in a game which was not to be entered as a regular league contest and the locals were handed the short end of a 41-39 score by the Grocer aggragation.

The game itself was an uninteresting affair with the local team playing foolishly in the first half and not trying to score as they should although they were holding their own with the grocerymen

The last quarter was the only interesting canto.

According to Dallas Williams, president of the league, no games will be played next week and the three leading teams will probably meet in the Central Ohio tournament which is being staged on the Commercial floor March 16, 18, 21 and, 22 and in this way they can settle the championship of the loop.

CATCHES BIG FISH

NEWPORT, Calif.—Believed the largest jew fish caught this season, Frank Lazarus hauled in an 850 pound monster which was eight feet long and more than seven feet in circumference. It was estimated the giant fish supplied enough meat for 3,000 persons.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly cheerful and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a sick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get them two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing but safe in making the bile flow freely. Don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. Use as directed. © 1933 C. M. Co.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

ASHVILLE'S basketball team can be given the monicker of "black-horse" of the central region class B tournament * * * Entering the meet with New Holland as its first opposition the Kauber-men were faced with the opportunity of hanging up its uniforms for the remainder of the year.

But lessons learned in the first contest with New Holland were sufficient to give the Harrisburg-twp boys enough pointers to put the county titlists in the dust * * * Now the Ashville team is faced with the threat of Lancaster St Mary's team and the threat is a real one * * * The Lancaster team has size, it doesn't lack a particle in confidence, in fact over-confidence can play havoc with the Irish hopes in this tournament, and above all it has experience.

Daugherty and Red Sheridan, both guards, with Abbott, the best scorer on the team, have all had enough experience in tournaments and against fast competition in the regular season to know what it is all about * * Daugherty must be a senior because we remember him as a member of the team led to the state championship by Landerfelt, who starred at center * * * Bernard Berens, high point man in the Buckeye conference this season with Ohio U. was also a member of that aggregation—and was it tough?

ASHVILLE will have to play its smartest basketball to defeat the Lancaster team, or even to have a chance with it * * * One of the good teams in the tournament will leave when Marysville and Ostrander tangle while Bellepoint, also a fine scoring machine, meets Thurston of Fairfield-co, and Brown and Toboso tangle * * * The games start at 6 p m Friday at Westerville with the Ashville-Lancaster St. Mary's contest first on the schedule.

Followers of Central Buckeye league athletics were saddened Tuesday by the report that Medary Stark, Bexley high school senior, had died of injuries suffered in an automobile wreck * * * Stark, well built, efficient and energetic athlete had played football in this city and will be remembered as a true sportsman by members of teams which played against him * * * He would have graduated in June from the East Columbus school.

MANY TOURNEY ENTRIES RECEIVED

March 16 Is Date Set For First Tilt in Commercial Point Joust.

Entries in the Central Ohio Independent tournament which is to be played in the Commercial Point gym on March 16, 18, 21 and 22, are beginning to come in faster according to Dallas Williams and Ralph Abernathy, who are managing the tournament

At the present time 11 teams have entered the Class A division of the tournament and to all appearances there will be a real galaxy of battles accruing when such teams as, New Holland, Shop Rovers of Columbus, Plumwood of Monroe-twp, Columbus Coated Fabrics Williams Grocers The State Highway Department Tiger Cubs of Columbus, Wiles A C of Columbus, Leaders A C. of Columbus, the local Starkey Cleaners and Bloomingburg, tie into one another in an effort to grab off a portion of the cash prize money which is being offered to the winners of first, second and third place

In the Class B division four teams have thus far made entry and they are the City Merchants of Columbus Shops Bread of Columbus, West Side Market of Columbus and the Commercial Point A C

The deadline for the filing of entries with the managers of the tournament has been set for March 13 and all teams wishing to enter are requested to get their entries in before that date.

Questions and Answers

Does cooking vegetables in salt water toughen them?

In all cases salt is added to the boiling water for vegetables. One to one and one-half teaspoons of salt to 1 quart of water is the suggested proportion. Cooking with salt helps retain the color of green vegetables, and improves the flavor of all.

What makes waffles lose their crispness when removed from the waffle iron?

The recipe may lack enough butter to make the waffles stay crisp, or the heat of the waffle iron may be too slight to give sufficient crispness to hold up.

What proportion of soap flakes and water should be used to make a good suds for washing?

When using a washing machine, it is advisable to dissolve the soap flakes in a smaller amount of hot water before adding to the tubful, to prevent undissolved particles from sticking to the clothes. About 2 cupfuls of flakes or powder to a machine tubful of water should be enough. If the water is very hard, more soap may be needed to make a rich suds.

How About St. Patrick?

Centuries after the date on which St. Patrick established his first church we celebrate with the "wearin' o' the green"

Perhaps it is because there is so much opportunity for decoration in the use of the colorful green, white and gold that the idea of a St. Patrick party is such a popular one, or perhaps it's just because it comes at a time when a lull has been reached in the winter's entertaining.

In any case, the decision of what to serve and how to do it attractively is still to be made. For a dinner that may be simply served with no extra effort I suggest these courses:

Lime Cocktail
Baked Stuffed Pork Chops
with Potato Puffs
Irish Apple Sauce
Crisp Lettuce with
Chopped Pickle Dressing
Mint Ice Cream
Shamrock Cookies
Coffee

If you'd like to serve later in the evening than dinner time

Irish Fruited Salad
Shamrock Sandwiches
Lettuce Potatoes
Pickles Olives
Coffee

make a light meal that can be augmented readily and made more festive by adding a dessert course. This may be elaborate or not, to suit your own taste, but a tinted ice with plain cookies, or plain frozen dessert with green frosted cakes would be easily served, and eliminate much last-minute strain

St. Patrick Dishes

For a lime cocktail I have in mind a lime-grapefruit juice drink tinted with a drop of green coloring, and garnished with a green maraschino cherry. You may call your potatoes, murphys, and the Irish Apple Sauce could run into a pun if you have the chance of showing your menu written, by calling it Blarney (it's just apple sauce tinted from the same bottle of coloring).

Justify your use of pork with the reference to Paddy's pig, and let it go at that. Shamrock cookies may be made, using a Shamrock cutter and angel food cake, and dipping the cut pieces like candy in a bright green frosting to make an attractive finish to the party food.

Irish fruited salad, lest it sound too far fetched, may be a number of interpretations of a molded fruit salad in a green gelatin base, or without gelatin, a mixture of canned pears and cherries which have been allowed to chill in a green vegetable coloring solution If you'd like this salad to be more substantial, balls of cream cheese, rolled in chopped nuts will add filling.

If you start thinking about the symbols and colors dedicated to the celebration of St Patrick's Day you'll have lots of ideas sneaking into your head so fast you'll have plenty to start with.

Memorial To John Fry, Jr.

Committees of the Pickaway-co farm bureau and Pickaway Grain Co, of which the late John Fry, Jr, was a director, have passed the following resolution in commemoration of the highly respected Jackson-twp man

IN MEMORIAM
TO
JOHN R. FRY, JR

Out of the unknown and unseen of the Universe, a Celestial Hand has beckoned to John R Fry to cease his labors here and to enter another and better Sphere. just why, we cannot understand, but it is not ours to question for we know that He who controls our destinies doeth all things well

Therefore be it resolved That in his departure our Organizations have lost a true and tried member, who did his duty willingly and faithfully: his community and church have had removed from their machinery a great cog which will be difficult to replace. and,

Be it further resolved That we extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family in the loss of a kind and loving husband and father: and that a copy of these resolutions be recorded in our minutes and a copy be sent to the family

THE STORM

The horizon in the west is very dark and the clouds seem to grow like mushrooms As the clouds grow blacker in the west only a portion of the sky can be seen A rising wind seems to tell the farm animals, as well as the farmer himself, to seek shelter The wife calls to her children to put the baby chicks in the coop, while she must close her windows and latch the shutters

The farmer is driving his horses in a run to get to the barn He opens a couple of gates and just as he is opening the last gate the rain begins to fall in torrents He runs to the barn where his hired men are sheltered from the rain. They begin to tell stories about another storm and as they come to the middle of a story, a large crack of thunder is heard. These brave men jump back and there is a moment of silence in the feeding room. The men go to the door and peep through the cracks in the door to see where the lightning has struck. They see that the large shade tree in the center of the field split in two. The wind is blowing buckets and tin cans and the limbs from the old cedar tree are now lying in the front yard The water is making a little river of its own through the driveway As the rain slackens, the chickens and cattle come out from their shelter and wade around in the water The farmer now comes tramping through the water to the house. He cleans his feet on the back step and enters to change from his damp cold clothes Now the sky is blue, the sun is shining, the birds are singing, and the world is happy again.

Spring Pattern Styles

IN A BIG NEW BOOK

● With every page of style, fabric and color suggestions radiating "Spring, 1933", the latest edition of the Marian Martin style book is a fascinating study for the woman who sews.

From the best of the new season's frocks—and there are many new fashion ideas this Spring — Marian Martin has chosen only those models that offer practicality with chic, and that are easy to make. The result is smart simplicity—the most important element in perfect grooming.

Marian Martin's infallible good taste is again reflected in the pages of charming styles for juniors and younger fashionables, and of course her models for the mature figure show her usual adroit use of slenderizing themes. If you sew, you will want this book before you make your Spring visit to the piece goods departments where a stunning array of lovely new fabrics awaits you.

whole. Toss lightly in hot melted butter, cooking until brown and tender. Serve as a vegetable in a little of the cooking juice, or for a luncheon entree on buttered toast. A rich cream sauce is sometimes made with the cooking juice and poured over broiled mushrooms.

SHRIMP CREOLE

Use canned shrimps, carefully cleaned of the dark vein; or if fresh shrimp are used they are first plunged into boiling, salted water and boiled ten to fifteen minutes. (Two teaspoons of salt to one quart of water.) Allow to cool in the cooking water. Then their shells are squeezed off and the vein of each removed.

Mix one cup of water with one half teaspoon of salt, one eighth teaspoon pepper, the juice of one lemon and its grated rind, three tablespoons olive oil, ons teaspoon kitchen bouquet, and one half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Pour this over the prepared shrimps and let stand one hour, in a cool place. Then drain and place the shrimps in a baking dish rubbed with shortening. Bake twenty to thirty minutes, until delicately browned.

Serve with the following sauce: put two tablespoons of shortening in a frying pan, add two coarsely chopped onions and brown together. Push the onions to one side of the pan and stir in two tablespoons of flour; when golden brown add one can of tomatoes and some of the juice, one clove garlic chopped very fine, salt, pepper and paprika. Stir all together and when thoroughly mixed and hot pour over the shrimps. Serve with freshly cooked, oven dried rice.

Change is Demanded

THAT unsound business methods were a contributing factor to the depression most clost students of the latter agree. It logically follows that a return of normal conditions must be preceded by the re-establishment of sound management in industry.

Recognition of this was given by Richard Whitney, president of the New York stock exchange, in an address before the Cleveland chamber of commerce. An urgent need of the present, he said, is for the publication by coporation of more informative and frank data concerning earnings and conditions of operation.

Investors, he said, are becoming more wary. They are "insisting upon more complete and accurate financial statements from publicly-owned companies, and I am sure that the directors and officials of these corporations, realizing the reasonableness of this demand, will furnish investors with adequate information."

During the boom years, he said, "the lack of complete disclosure of the results of business operations contributed to the inflation of security values." Instead of frankly disclosing their condition, some concerns used accounting methods which "resulted in an overstatement of income."

Practices of this kind were condemned by the exchange head. The demand for their abolition represents a move in the right direction and one to which corporations will have to respond if they wish to regain public confidence.

No Money

MONEY is not wealth. Wealth can be described as the power which man has at any given time ever the natural forces and substances by which he is surrounded. This includes both stored up and potential power.

For the first time in human history the potential power of mankind is greater than its actual stored-up power. The world is infinitely richer than ever before. Unfortunately, the system under which we live does not allow us to obtain the benefits that science—which is the fruit of brains and the hard work of man-so lavishly spread before us. We must learn to think, not in terms of "money," but in terms of "goods."

The problem today is how to make money fit the truth of commodities and to stop trying to make commodities fit money. The world must learn the economics of plenty and forget the economics of scarcity.

But for force of habit the American people would be getting along very well today without money instead of trying to struggle along without it.

Everything has changed since the era of too much plenty, but things will not stay changed. All the cold methods will return with the return of better times.

SYNOPSIS

Tom Leach, pirate terror of the Spanish Main, and the master of the dread "Black Swan," captures the merchant vessel "The Centaur," bound for England, and kills the captain and crew. Passengers aboard the "Centaur" are Priscilla Harradine, lovely young daughter of the late Captain-General of the Leeward Isles, Major Sands, her father's elderly aide, who hopes to win her hand and fortune, and the handsome young Frenchman, Charles de Bernis, former lieutenant of the buccaneer, Henry Morgan. The latter reformed and is commissioned by the King of England to rid the seas of pirates. He has tried in vain to capture the elusive Leach. De Bernis, known to Leach of old, protects Priscilla by introducing her as his wife, and the Major, as his brother-in-law. He holds Leach at bay with a promise of great wealth in the form of a Spanish plate fleet scheduled to sail shortly. It is agreed that De Bernis will take command of the "Centaur" and lead Leach to the treasure. The pirate chief reluctantly agrees to De Bernis' suggestion that they careen "The Black Swan," to put it in battle order for their coming encounter with the Spaniards. Leach holds his anger towards De Bernis in check waiting until the treasure is in his hands. Despite the fact that he owes his life to De Bernis, Major Sands is hostile towards the Frenchman, feeling superior to him. When Priscilla reprimands him for his apparent ingratitude, he explains it is due to his concern for her safety. To Priscilla's question as to why he became a buccaneer, De Bernis explains how the persecution of the Huguenots in France caused him to flee to Santa Catalina and join his uncle, Sieur Simon. Friendless, when his uncle was killed, he had no alternative but to join Morgan. "The Black Swan" is finally beached at Albuquerque Keys and the work of cleaning her hull begun. Leach and his men live in thatched huts on the shore, while De Bernis and his party stay aboard the "Centaur" at anchor nearby. Major Sands, ever intent to justify to Priscilla his scorn of De Bernis, takes him to task for fraternizing with the crew. De Bernis retorts that most things are done in life from sheer necessity.

"By heaven!" roared Leach, and came to his feet on the oath. "What manner of trusting fool have I been not to see this danger?"

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

"Stab me! You may be right. That may be the general rule of life. I hadn't thought of it. But here, now, what necessity do you obey when you go amongst these fellows?"

"But isn't it plain? I am sure that Miss Priscilla understands me."

Calmly she met the gaze of his dark eyes. "I think I do. You obey the necessity of disposing them favourably towards you."

"And not merely towards me, but towards us all. Must I tell you that this Leach is a treacherous, headstrong, violent beast? Although I have associated myself with him, and although I believe that I hold him fast in the bonds of cupidity, yet I cannot be sure that perversity, stupidity, or the sheer evil that is in the fellow may not drive him to burst his bonds. Do not, therefore, turn the eye of scorn upon me because I am concerned to forge myself a buckler against the day of need. That buckler lies in winning the regard, even the affection, of these men."

The Major made a wry face of disgust. "Affection!" he depreciated. "Stab me! There are some things that can be too dearly bought."

"You may be right. For myself, I am slow to reach conciusions in these matters. But there is a detail to which you may not have given attention. If there should be an end of me, Major, there will certainly be an end of you and of Miss Priscilla. You will include no illusion on that score among the many illusions from which I have observed you to suffer." He smiled upon the sudden utter blankness of the Major's countenance. "Be sparing, therefore, in your contempt of the means by which I ensure your preservation with my own from any of the accidents to which such a nature as Captain Leach's might expose it."

With that, and without awaiting any answer from Major Sands, he adroitly turned the conversation into other channels, addressing himself to Miss Priscilla whose eyes gleamed curiously as they now met his own. Almost, he could have supposed, she took satisfaction in the unanswerable rebuke which he had administered to the pompous soldier.

At about the same time and upon the very same topic, Wogan and Halliwell were entertaining Leach, who sat at dinner with them and with the fiery-faced Ellis and the quiet-mannered, pock-marked Bundry, in the log cabin that had been built for them.

Leach was not impressed at first. "What's the odds?" he growled. "Let him do as he likes until he brings us to the Spaniards. Then it'll be my turn, as he'll find out."

To Ellis and Bundry there was news in this dark hint; for unlike Wogan and Halliwell they were not yet in the Captain's confidence as to how he intended to square matters with de Bernis for his intransigence over the articles. There was a queer kindling in the furnace of Ellis's countenance. But Bundry's eyelids droope slowly like the membrane of a bird, and his face, with its clay-coloured pallor upon which the ardour of the sun could make no impression, grew more like a mask than ever.

The corpulent Halliwell leaned forward across the table. He spoke quietly. "Can ye suppose, Cap'n, that possibility don't occur to him?"

"What if it do? He's here, isn't he? We've got him, haven't we? How's he to get away from us?"

Halliwell's little eyes were screwed up and almost disappeared into his bulging cheeks. "Came and put himself into your hands, very trusting like, didn't he?" quoth his sly voice.

"Couldn't help his self as things fell out." Leach was still contemptuous.

"Just so," said Halliwell. "Just so. 'Twas in his mind, as he told ye, to ha' gone to Guadeloupe for a ship and men wi' which to join us. But things fell out so as he didn't need to. It don't follow that he welcomes it. If he'd ha' joined us wi' a ship o' his own arming, and men o' his own recruiting, he'ld not be as helpless as he is now, would he? And ye're not supposing that Mossoo de Bernis of all men alive isn't awake to that and to what may happen to him."

"Suppose he is. What, then? How the devil can he mend it?"

Impatiently Wogan flung into the discussion, so as to shed more light on the Captain's dullness.

"Och, now, don't ye see that's just what he may be trying to do?"

Leach sat up as if he had been stung. Wogan elaborated.

"There he is aboard yon ship wi' a hundred stout lads, and us careened here, high and dry, and as helpless as if our hands was tied behind our backs. What for is he at such pains to be making friends with them? Putting a spell on them with tales of his brave doings as a rover, and howling Spanish ditties to them in the moonlight, like a love-sick tom-cat? Will ye trust him with them? Or them with him, if it comes to that? There's Ned and me might wake up to find we've had our throats cut in our sleep, and him sailing away with the ship and the lads to try their luck by theirselves against the Spaniards and keep the treasure to theirselves. And you, Tom, careened. Careened here, with devil a ship in which to follow him and devil a notion which way to follow if ye had a ship."

"By heaven!" roared Leach, and came to his feet on the oath. It was as if a pit had suddenly yawned at his feet. What manner of trusting fool had he been not to have seen this danger for himself?

Neglecting Irritations Of Throat

Dr. Copeland Warns of the Dangers in This Practice

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

MANY PERSONS are susceptible to inflammations of the throat, of the pharynx and larynx. They are particularly common at this time of the year. Sudden changes in weather and exposure to cold and dampness, lead to irritation of the throat.

Dr. Copeland

The doctors give these attacks pretty big names. They call them "pharyngitis" and "laryngitis."

Pharyngitis is an inflammation of the mucous membrane or lining of the upper part of the throat. The trouble may be traced to infections of the nose, such as chronic sinusitis or chronic catarrh of the nose. In these cases the inflammation gradually creeps from the nose into the throat.

Pharyngitis may also follow exposure to germs received from the nose and throat of some infected person. These germs are quickly spread from one individual to another, being transmitted by kissing, coughing, sneezing, and drinking from contaminated cups. Pharyngitis may follow the excessive use of highly spiced foods, alcohol, tobacco or the inhalation of smoke or irritating dust or vapor.

Voice May Be Lost

The irritation may result from some constitutional disorder, such as constipation, anemia, or tuberculosis. Its cause can be determined only by a thorough physical examination. When the underlying cause is discovered and removed, the sufferer is assured of permanent relief. Common sense dictates that any inflammation of the throat demands immediate medical attention.

In laryngitis the voice is altered or may be entirely lost.

This affliction, inflammation of the voice box, often follows exposure to dampness and cold. A cold which starts in the head often results in laryngitis with loss of voice. It may also follow overuse of the voice and is a common complaint on the part of orators and public speakers.

Inflammation of the larynx can only be cured by rest of this delicate organ. Avoid all unnecessary talking and above all, refrain from smoking during the attack. Severe cases require prolonged rest in bed.

I warn you about hoarseness that lasts for several months. This symptom should never be considered as coming from a simple laryngitis. Something more serious should be suspected when hoarseness persists. A careful and thorough examination of the throat is essential. Negligence may prove dangerous.

Answers to Health Queries

G. St. C. Q.—What will eradicate blackheads and pimples? 2: What should a girl of 14, 5 feet 3 inches tall, weigh? What should a girl of 17, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weigh?

A.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. 2: They should weigh respectively: 113 and 130 pounds. This would be about average for their respective ages and heights as determined by examination of a large number of persons.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION

The Loyal Temperance Legion held their regular monthly meeting, Saturday, March 4, in the M. E. church basement at 2:30 o'clock.

The president, Richard Kirkpatrick, had charge of the business session. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Dorothy Wright and approved by the members present. Two interesting stories were read by the leader, Mrs. Warren E. Hobble. Reading, Martha French; Reading, Dorothy Wright.

The yells were conducted by the cheer leader, Joan Griffith. Several interesting games were then conducted by Mrs. Leslie Tarbill, assistant leader, which were enjoyed by all.

Delicious refreshments were then served to the members, and five visitors by Mesdames Gayle Wright and Florence French.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thomas of Steubenville, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Cranston McQuay and daughter, Elaine.

Betty James spent the week-end at the home of S. C. Briggs.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Griffith entertained to dinner Sunday, honoring the sixth birthday anniversary of their granddaughter, Virginia Griffith. Those enjoying the day with the honor guest were: Miss Esther Griffith and Kenneth Smith of Dayton, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Griffith and daughter, Joan.

Mrs. Rose Crabb was taken to White Cross hospital, Columbus, Friday, for observation.

BRITISH COTTON

LIVERPOOL—The delivery of all cotton to British spinners in 1932 indicate a higher activity of the cotton industry over that of 1931. Total deliveries of all cotton for the calendar year 1932 amounted to about 2 440,000 bales against 2,235,000 bales for 1931, indicating an increase in the activity of about 10 per cent.

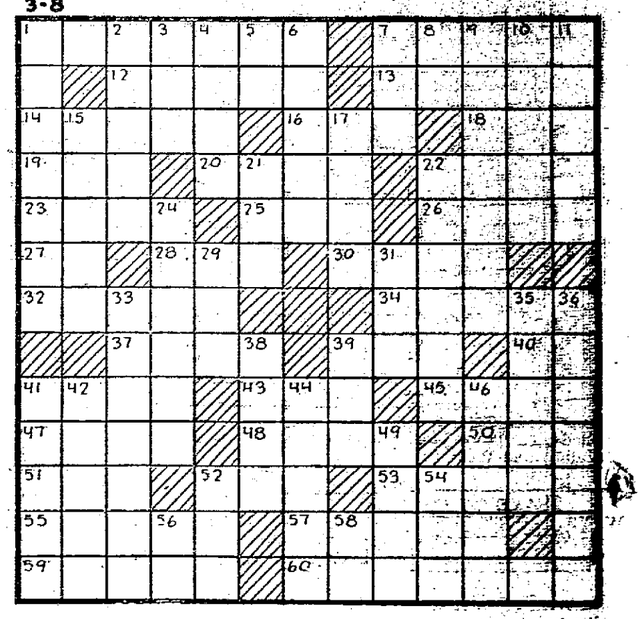

PROSPERITY?

AT THE GRAND

..'Oh dear, my . . . oh, is he going to undress her right here?" Well, what would you think if you were the hostess at a sedate party and the shadow of a glass door leading to a balcony plainly showed a man in the act of removing a woman's stockings?

That is exactly what ZaSu Pitts wonders, and that is why she asks the startled question of Roland Young, with whom she is conversing in the drawing room. But if she had only realized at the time that the man whose shadow she saw was her husband, Slim Summerville! And if Young had known that the woman was Verree Teasdale, the blond siren with whom he himself was then carrying on an affair! But they found it out later, and then the fireworks began.

This is one of the amusing situations in "They Just Had to Get Married," the hilarious Universal comedy which comes to the Grand theater on Wednesday with Slim Summerville and Miss Pitts in the starring roles.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Modern women are morally superior to their sister of the past declares Irene Dunne, RKO-Radio star.

"It is because they do not have to be good unless they desire to be," she says. 'The old order of conduct is gone. A mistake does not haunt a woman's entire life, as formerly. With equal graciousness society accepts the unsophisticated debutante and the butterfly of many amours.

"Women now are as free as the air," Miss Dunne continues. "They can literally get away with anything.

"There's a splendid bit of drama in my present picture, 'No Other Woman,' that strikingly illustrates this point. Charles Bickford, who plays the role of my husband, brings divorce action against me. To gain custody of our child he charges me with improper conduct. He knows I am innocent.

"To balk him I deny that he is the father of my child and I get away with it!

"No Other Woman," which is the coming attraction Thursday and Friday at the Cliftona theater, is a story of a woman whose hard work, scrimping and foresight enable her husband to rise from steel worker to millionaire and who is then cast aside for another woman.

The League of Nations might get after under the traffic laws for reckless driving.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT LUTHER LEAGUE MEETING

Fifty-three members and guests were present for the March meeting of the Luther league held Tuesday evening at Trinity Lutheran Parish house, with Rev. G. L. Troutman, president, presiding.

The session was opened with a song and devotional service led by Rev. Troutman. One new member, Galen Mowery, was taken into the organization at this meeting.

The secretary, Miss Dorothy Riegel, read the committees in charge of the April meeting as follows: program—Kenneth Young, chairman, Rev. and Mrs. G. L. Troutman, Noah List, Galen Mowery, Misses Zelma Hoffman, Ethyl Cook, Mary K. Wolf, Bertha Valentine and Margaret Bower; lunch—Miss Anne O'Connor, chairman, Misses Ethyl Cook, Grace Bower and Jean Fitzpatrick.

At this time three papers on Lent were read. "Lent and Self-Denial" was discussed by Miss Margaret Bower and "Lent as the Ideal Time for Sacrifice" by Ned Dresbach. Mrs. G. L. Troutman gave some "Practical Sacrifice Suggestions."

Following the readings, the program committee, under the chairmanship of Hillard Gehres, including George Fisher, Stanley Melvin, Misses Ruth Wolf, Ann O'Connor, Marjory Wolf, Betty Fisher, Louise Fitzpatrick, Helen Crist, and Mrs. Luther Bower, presented the second of a series of contest entertainments in the form of a radio program.

Misses Ann O'Connor and Marjory Wolf, seated on the stage, tuned the radio and the following was heard from station BUNK, with Stanley Melvin as the announcer: 'Hink and Dink' act by George Fisher and Stanley Melvin; recipes by Miss Ruth Wolf; vocal solos, "The Desert Song" and "A Little Street Where Old Friends Meet," by Hillard Gehres; a talk on St. Patrick's Day by Miss Louise Fitzpatrick; piano solo, "Rustle of Spring" by Miss Helen Crist and humorous readings by Mrs. Luther Bower and Miss Betty Fisher.

A social hour was enjoyed and a lunch was served by the committee in charge of Miss Dorothy Riegel, who was assisted by Miss Louise Fitzpatrick, Miss Margaret Carter, Miss Margaret Bower and Harold Dresbach.

BIBLE CLASS ELECTS OFFICERS TUESDAY

Mrs. Charles Smith was selected president of the Westminster Bible Class at its March meeting held Tuesday evening in the social room of the Presbyterion church Officers named to assist Mrs. Smith were Miss Florence Dunton, vice president; Mrs. Aletha Lucas, secretary; Mrs. E. S. Shane, treasurer; Mrs. Blanche Motschman, publicity chairman.

The above officers, presented by the nominating committee composed of the three past presidents, were unanimously accepted by the class.

The business meeting was conducted by the retiring president, Mrs. Donald H. Watt and was opened by the class repeating the Lord's prayer. Mrs. E. E. Porter read the minutes of the previous meeting in the absence of the class secretary, Mrs. L. E. Evans, and Miss Winifred Parrett, treasurer, gave her annual report, which was followed by several reports by various committee chairmen At the close of the business session Mrs. Watt gave an interesting resume of worthwhile activities that the class has promoted during the past seven years.

Mrs. H. Stanley Lewis opened the program with a roll call of the class in keeping with the St Patrick program which had been planned, each member responding with an Irish Joke or short story. In the midst of this procedure, the class was honored by the visit of a distinguished Irish couple from Ireland, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Flanigan, in the person of Mrs. Blanche Motschman and Mrs George McDowell. They entered the room quarreling and provided much merriment for the crowd with their foolish antics They passed song books to the guests and Pat Flanigan accompanied the guests with his guitar, while Molly Flanigan lead the music as all present joined in the singing of Old Irish songs. Mrs E S. Toensmeier accompanied them at the piano. Molly sang "Old Dan Tucker" accompanied by Pat with his guitar

Pat and Molly "smelled tea" and went to a gorgeously appointed table at the far side of the room which was covered with a lovely lace table cover, the centerpiece being a potted shamrock plant. Green tapers lighted the table and placed here and there were artistic green snakes, which were designed from candy by Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Lewis. A tiny Irish hut was close by and Molly decided to pour the tea assisted by Pat who jerked off his plaid coat and assisted Molly as she served the guests. The costumes of Pat and Molly were typical of the characters they portrayed.

Delicious refreshments carrying out the St. Patrick color scheme were served

Great credit for this splendid meeting is given Mrs. H. Stanley Lewis, chairman, who was assisted by Mrs Donald H. Watt, Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker and Mrs. E. E Porter.

The meeting also marked the retirement of the officers of the past year namely Mrs. Donald H. Watt, president, Mrs. H. S. Lewis, vice president; Mrs. L E Evans, secretary, Miss Winired Parrett, treasurer, Mrs. Blanche Motschman, publicity chairman settlement of international debts and international problems, as remedies for unemployment, fall far short of the mark

"The present situation calls for direct, immediate action The clear call of the moment is to industrial management to make such adjustments and to initiate such policies as may be necessary to provide employment for idle people and to return them to the wage-earning class where they may exercise their maximum buying power and thus create a demand for marketable goods

"Amid all the distressing difficulties which have beset the masses of the people on every hand during these terrible days, labor has presented in all good faith and sincerity, its own plans for economic recovery and suggested remedies which it feels sure would, if applied, in a great degree overcome unemployment."

Keep on good terms with your stomach

For really digestible pie-crust use CRISCO—the quicker-digesting shortening

Don't think that one cooking fat is as good as another. Your stomach quickly knows the difference. For your own good, avoid heavy, greasy fats. Choose Crisco, the pure, sweet-tasting fat that digests quicker!

Just compare Crisco with common fat and you'll see why Crisco is so kind to your stomach. It's as white and pure and fluffy as a drift of snow. It tastes as sweet as fresh-whipped cream!

Don't take risks! Crisco isn't like cheap fats that turn smelly and indigestible. Crisco keeps sweet and quicker-digesting for weeks. Crisco doesn't need ice-box care. It is made by Crisco's own process to keep quicker-digesting!

Today's the best day to start cooking with Crisco. You'll certainly make a hit with your husband if you surprise him with delicious Coronation Butterscotch Pie (see recipe). Under the frothy baked meringue are layers of smooth butterscotch filling and flaky Crisco pie-crust. It's a pie that looks like a layer cake! If your husband wants a second piece, give it to him. For Crisco pie-crust is digestible!

CORONATION BUTTERSCOTCH PIE

(a pie that doesn't look like a pie—it has 3 layers like a cake)

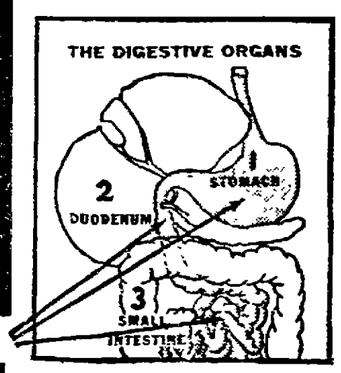

THE FILLING
2 tablespoons Crisco
1 cup flour
3 egg yolks, lightly beaten
¾ cups brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk (hot)

To make filling: Mix flour and salt. Add milk and cook until mixture thickens, stir before removing from stove. Stir in beaten yolks and Crisco. Let stand while preparing delicious sweet-tasting Crisco pastry.

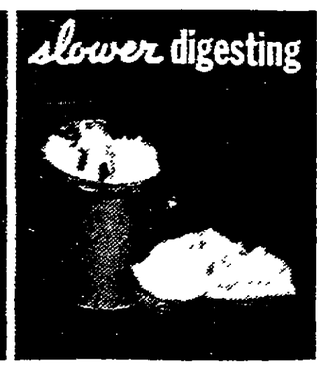

THE PASTRY
1 cup flour
½ cup Crisco
½ teaspoon salt
cold water

To make pastry: Sift flour and salt. Use really digestible sweet Crisco to cut in Crisco, a quicker digesting fat. Cut in Crisco with tips of fingers until mixture is the size of peas. Add water, 4 to 6 tablespoons, enough to hold dry ingredients together. Divide the dough into 2 parts and roll out on floured sheet. Cut into rounds. Stir together in dish for Place 2 pastry on baking sheets, pricking each well. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) until delicately brown. Put pie together like 2 cake layers with filling also. Cover with meringue made by beating 2 egg whites with 6 tablespoons sugar. Brown slightly in oven (350° F.). Serve as soon as cool.

Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Company.

At these 3 points, fat digestion takes place . . . CRISCO digests quicker

-REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

At The Herald Cooking School, Mrs. George Thurn used and recommended CRISCO, the modern, quicker-digesting shortening
